Job Description

The Institute of Materials Structure Science is promoting cutting edge research using following quantum beams such as Synchrotron Radiation (SR), Neutron, Muon and Slow Positron in the broad ranges of materials and life sciences. The successful candidate will belong to the Development in Future Synchrotron Radiation Research group in the Photon Factory (PF), and will develop techniques and prepare the research environment in order to fully utilize the future light source including ERL. He/she is expected to carry out cutting edge research using them, especially to lead research and technical development in the fast dynamics sciences by exploiting the characteristics of the short X-ray pulses. He/she is expected to make significant contributions to the operation of the related beamlines and experimental apparatuses as well as further promotion of the user program at the PF.

Method of Selection

We will make a selection by submitted documents and interview.

The date of the interview : February 28, 2012
